

Main Street Project Progress Update

What's Been Going On?

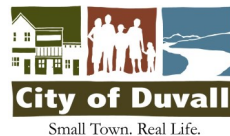

It was a mixed bag this week with crews working on quite a few different items. The main push is on the utilities at the moment with Puget Sound Energy and WAVE making big strides toward the undergrounding effort. With the underground power system up and running—the real fun is about to start.

What's Coming Up next week?

Next week could be exciting. PSE is planning to convert all of the power services to the new system during the week. This affects a couple hundred customers total with all notifications provided by PSE. The work will happen night and day, so expect to see work going just about anytime. Another big item on the schedule is sidewalks. Interwest has prepped quite a bit of area and is planning to pour some sidewalk toward the end of next week. Weather plays a huge factor here so please stay tuned.
