

What are these - things?

These devices are set up along a number of streets and intersections throughout the city and are collecting data on traffic patterns, like number of cars and time of day.

This information will help us analyze current AM & PM traffic flow and forecast future level of service needs.

